REGAL COLORS

Modern colored glassware in jewel tones is all the rage. The revival of color in dinnerware has become a staple in spaces around the world! These green goblets and blue serving plates would make for a star studded table during the holidays.

TWINKLING STARS

Henri Matisse, a French artist, known for his expansive use of color, crafted this bold and playful image, named Icarus, to illustrate his groundbreaking book "Jazz" in 1947. Although not an original, we enjoy the idea of framing one of his prints in a clean lined frame to match the lines of his time.

SCULPTURALLY PLUSH

This stuffed zebra is as lifelike as they come with its striking monochrome pattern. What creative possibilities for your space! Either installed in a child's playroom or used as a photoshoot prop, his realistic attitude is everything.
